

Besides the activities in the field of grinding, breaking and separating Brockhausen Engineering also does consulting services which are independently from products and suppliers. The scope of customers for such services comprises companies in the comminution as well as related processing industries. Focus of these consulting services is the preparation of energy saving programs. Additionally we offer training for technical staff in start up and optimizing phases.